Say What?

Hearing loss may be an unrecognized danger, but one that exists nevertheless. Loss of hearing can be a problem not only in the work place, but at home and at play as well. On the job, OSHA allows 8 hours per day of exposure to 90 dB sound levels. When noise levels increases by just 20 dB to 110 dB, daily exposure allowance falls to just 1/2 hour.

At home, the operation of a power lawn mower has a noise output of 107 dB OSHA guidelines say that daily exposure should be limited to 3/4 -1 hour at this level. Hearing protection that gives a 22 dB noise reduction extends exposure to over 8 hours.

Personal safety has no price. However in these tough times Clarcorp would like to help you by offering you these economical 22 dB reduction ear muffs.

Featuring a tough nylon headband with soft foam ear cups, these individually packaged ear muffs offer a product for both home and shop. At these prices you can afford to have spares. PRYPM2010 Sale priced at $4.32 per pair or $155.52 per case of 40.
